About IAHA NT Workforce Development

IAHA NT Workforce Development is a Northern Territory, Aboriginal education, training, and employment organisation that aims to improve health and wellbeing outcomes with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, families, and communities across the Territory. IAHA NT Workforce Development provides established programs for individuals and organisations looking at career pathways, employment or building a local workforce in health and related sectors.

IAHA NT Workforce Development recognise and value the centrality of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures, knowledges, and perspectives, which are reflected in our programs and workforce development approaches which value and honour Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander ways of knowing, being, and doing. To achieve our vision, IAHA NT Workforce Development take a holistic approach to the success and wellbeing of the individual, their family and community. Providing culturally informed and responsive supports, that empower Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to pursue education and career pathways puts their community and culture at the centre of everything we do.

What does IAHA NTWD do?

IAHA Northern Territory Workforce Development provides support to individuals and organisations by:

- Connecting through personal, professional and cultural development opportunities
- Growing and implementing career pathways with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities
- Strengthening leadership capacity across the health and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workforce.
- Transforming partnerships with organisations, universities, governments and other related bodies to improve health curricula and address health workforce issues
- Delivering innovative education, training and mentoring programs
- Developing and maintaining strong networks and connections with communities to ensure IAHA NTWD priorities meet their needs and aspirations
- Working closely with the health sector and communities to improve access to services and employment opportunities
- Leading with the allied health and health sectors to eliminate racism and improve the cultural safety and responsiveness of professional practice, services and organisations

Join our Health Pathways Program!

First Nations Introduction to University – Health. Take the first step towards choosing a career that's right for you.

CDU's First Nations Introduction to University is a free, 4-week full-time study program. It offers a supported pathway for First Nations students to prepare for future studies. If you are 17 years or older, and considering a career in health, this program will provide you with the academic skills, confidence, and essential knowledge needed to choose your health profession.

If you are a First Nations person interested in a career in health and wanting to do further study, the Health Pathways Program can be a great way to get started.

CDU Course Code: ZIPIP2

Program Delivery locations: Darwin, (Casuarina Campus) Nhulunbuy, Alice Springs, and Katherine

Timing: Full-time: Monday – Friday, 9.00 am – 4.00 pm

Study Options: Complete the four-week Program or spread it over two, two-week blocks

Apply or register your interest

1. Choose your program location

Aboriginal Medical Services Alliance Northern Territory

We are the Aboriginal Community Controlled Health peak body in the Northern Territory

AMSANT is the peak body for Aboriginal community-controlled health services in the Northern Territory. AMSANT has been established for 30 years and has a major policy and advocacy role, both within the Northern Territory and at national levels.

Our 27 members are located across the Northern Territory - from Darwin to the most remote areas. The Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Sector is the largest provider of primary health care to Aboriginal people in the Northern Territory. Aboriginal community-controlled health services deliver comprehensive primary health care in an integrated, holistic, culturally secure framework which combines a population health approach with primary health care service delivery; in addition, Aboriginal community-controlled health services are also involved in diverse health research activities.

AMSANT aims to grow a strong Aboriginal community controlled comprehensive primary health care sector by supporting our members to deliver culturally safe, high quality comprehensive primary health care that supports action on the social determinants of health; and representing our members' views and aspirations through advocacy, policy, planning and research.

AMSANT provides guidance and advocacy on a wide range of research, public health issues, education, workforce, continual quality improvement programs, social and emotional wellbeing, housing and other determinants of health that affect Northern Territory Aboriginal people. AMSANT has high level collaborations with the Northern Territory and Commonwealth Governments on these issues.

TOGETHER WE CAN END AVOIDABLE BLINDNESS

“ The best thing that ever happened to me ”

- Caroline, 74, Darumbal woman

Northern Territory Primary Health Network is proud to support the Deadly Cup Carnival 2025 - a celebration of community connection, culture and better health outcomes.

As a sponsor, we're committed to working in partnership to improve the health and wellbeing of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples across the Top End.

Come along, meet local services, enjoy the activities and find out how we're supporting a healthier, stronger Northern Territory.

Together, we're building a culturally safe and connected primary healthcare system.
